The WC-240 job offer process can be tricky, but do not let the procedural requirements or challenges fool you into thinking you cannot master this very useful strategy.

Marion Martin and Jonathan Wilson will discuss the legal steps and procedural requirements to successfully offer suitable light duty work to an employee — from job description, to physician approval, to job offer and beyond. The webinar will also address strategically using the WC-240 offer to its greatest impact in a claim, regardless of whether the employee refuses the job or returns to work. Offering light duty will not be a “fool’s errand” once you become proficient in the process.
