"How to Avoid Being a Victim of Social Media Lawsuit Sabotage"

Birmingham Business Journal

05.11.2017

In an article published on May 5, 2017, in the Birmingham Business Journal, senior attorney David Williams provides insight as to how social media has impacted litigation. Williams says that many people do not realize that posting information, pictures, or news articles could potentially cost them their case. "For example, if a lawsuit is pending for a person's neck injuries sustained in a slip and fall at the local grocery store, it is probably not a good idea to post a picture while dancing at the local club or while skiing in Colorado," Williams explains. "Simply put, use discretion when sharing on social media." For the full article, subscribers to the Birmingham Business Journal may click here.
